Educational Common Sense.

Last week I wrote of educating vocationally in a general way. It is not reasonable to expect we can start a full-fledged trade school off hands, or it is not my idea. This would call for a large corps of experts and would be beyond our financial reach.
There are two courses, however, that can be readily handled, viz., agriculture and business or commercial.
The practical part of agriculture the farmer's boy gets at home, but that which it would be practically impossible for him to get there, he can get at school under proper instruction such as a practical knowledge of chemistry, systematic methods of testing seeds and soil, to learn how to use and not abuse insect poisons, tree culture and numberless items I know nothing about.
As an example of the value of agricultural chemistry:
The department at Washington, D. C., received a box of earth from Texas asking the question, "What is it good for?" The answer was learned in due season. "Onions." The result is that Texas is now supplying the whole country with Bermuda onions. Ask Drake & Brooks where their Bermuda come from.
The commercial course would cover, not necessarily shorthand or typewriting but a thorough practical knowledge of bookkeeping, percentage, interest, a fair understanding of commercial law, banking, brokerage and insurance.
They ought to be able to tell the difference between a draft or note and not be deceived by a spurious agreement which turns up as a note of hand. And they would. Perhaps saving a sickening loss some time by this very training. Experience is a good school but expensive. Let us give our children the benefit of our experience, and do it when they are best adapted to receive and remember.
With our present system, good though it be, is absolutely correct for the student of a higher or professional career. Who of you, readers, who have books to keep, would put any high school graduate in charge of them without careful oversight for some time. My own books are about as simple as possible, but I have lost hair in the struggle I have had in the past to clear and clean up after some I have had with me, whom I know to be as good scholars as the best, and who ought to be able to teach me and could, but not in practical things.
Now to do these things, to teach our boys so they will not start handicapped three or four years upon leaving high school, we must have more room and more teachers.
The expense will sound large, but divided over a series of years, among from a thousand or so taxpayers, the cost will be ridiculously small, not much more than our poll tax, and the rewards to run from fifteen to twenty years, paying gradually. But the value to the boys and girls who will benefit by this change will be beyond computation.
Wm. C. LEAVITT.

Base Ball.

The newly organized base ball team called the Norway Crescents played its first real game of ball, Saturday, July 20, at Watford, winning a close and exciting game with the score 5 to 3. The Crescents opened the game very savagely and garnered 8 runs, and that lead held when Watford scored 2 which was the score up to the fourth when Norway crept ahead and finally won out.
Stevens pitched a remarkable game, only one ball going to the outfield. The Watford boys are very gentlemanly sort of fellows and we appreciate the good treatment we received from them. There will be a game in Norway between these two teams and it ought to be well exciting.
The Crescents are looking for Saturday afternoon games out of town. The lineup: O. Mills, c; G. Stevens, p; D. Partridge, 1b; W. Christian, 2b; R. Kimball, 3b; C. Billings, 3b; S. Miliken, cf; E. Brown, lf; E. Thomas, rf.
Arrangements for games are made through S. Miliken, Norway, Me. This Saturday's game is probably to be played in Oxford.
Norway Municipal Court.
Wm. F. Jones, Judge.
Joseph Mayo was brought before the court, Monday morning charged with intoxication. He was arrested in front of the Grand Trunk station, Saturday night. He pleaded "guilty" and was fined $5.00 and costs, which he paid and was discharged.
Farrar-Thompson.
A quiet wedding took place at the home of the bride on Tucker street on Wednesday afternoon, July 24th at two o'clock, when Carl E. Farrar of South Paris and Mrs. Jessie Thompson of Norway were united in marriage by Rev. B. C. Wentworth. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Douglass Farrar.
Carl E. Farrar has traveled quite extensively in this country, has been through the States and Alaska, also to British Columbia, and is a very interesting conversationalist.
Mr. Farrar is now engaged in the grain business in South Paris.
V. W. Hills spent Monday and Tuesday in Boston.
Mr. and Mrs. James Tibbs spent the day, Sunday, in Portland.
Lora Aldrich has finished work for Martena Richardson.

Howard Evers spent last week with his uncle, Nelson McAllister, at Peak's Island, at Camp Pennessewassee. His brother, Raymond Evers, is visiting his uncle there this week.
Harry C. Everett, contractor and builder, who purchased A. B. Robbins' shop, the head of Main street, has moved his business here and is going to West Medford, Mass., where he will work at his trade.
Mrs. B. C. Wentworth and her daughter, Ethel Mae, are spending their vacation at Old Orchard. Several of the University graduates, who are members of Miss Wentworth's class are there also, which makes her outing doubly pleasant.
J. A. Roberts has been confined to the house with inflammatory rheumatism, since the fifth of this month. He is beginning to get about a little, but is unable to do any work yet. He is planning to commence work on the State road again, the first of August.
The Good Templars, who have been holding their meetings at Grand Army hall, met Monday evening at the vestry of the Methodist church and have decided to hold their future meetings at the K. G. E. hall, as in years past. This change was necessitated by the sale of G. A. R. hall to the Knights of Pythias.
The services at the Congregational church, Sunday morning, July 28th, will be the last service until September 8th. There will be special music, outside talent is expected to assist the choir. The sermon theme will be "Christian Experience." A large congregation is expected. After the regular service of worship the Holy Communion will be celebrated.
Miss H. M. Taylor has been one of the contestants in the Portland Daily & Sunday Press European contest, which was completed Saturday. Miss Taylor received 178,041 votes, and came in third in District 6, receiving the largest number of votes in this country. Grace Dudley of South Paris stood well in the contest, receiving 103,615 votes.

Horse Painted.

Wednesday afternoon, while the telephone poles were being painted in front of C. A. Richardson's market, Mason Frost drove his horse up in front of the telephone pole. Harlow Adkins was painting the top of the pole and told Mr. Frost that the horse was liable to be splattered with paint, but Mr. Frost thought there was no danger and did not move the horse.
When Mr. Adkins turned to come down the pole in some way he over-turned the pail of paint, upsetting it, and giving the horse a coat of paint. Of course Mr. Adkins came to the ground and removed the paint from the horse as best he could. Mr. Frost in the future will beware of telephone paint.

DOUBLY PROVEN

Advertiser Readers Can No Longer Doubt the Evidence.

This grateful citizen testified long ago.

Told of quick relief—of undoubted benefit.

The facts are now confirmed.

Such testimony is complete—the evidence conclusive.

It forms convincing proof of merit.

Mrs. Frances S. Harlow, Skillings Ave., South Paris, Me., says:—“I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and have always found them a good remedy for kidney and bladder trouble. They certainly strengthen the kidneys and relieve backache. I was feeling a little bad recently and knew that my kidneys needed a tonic. I got Doan's Kidney Pills and they gave me relief in a short time.” (Statement given July 23, 1908.)

LATER TESTIMONY

Mrs. Harlow was interviewed on May 1, 1912 and she said:—“I am certainly grateful for what Doan's Kidney Pills have done for me. I confirm my former endorsement of them.” 30-31

A Fable.

(By request of J. E. S. K.) Some cawing crows, a hooting owl, A cat and an old marsh owl, One day all met together To hold a caucus and settle the fate Of a certain bird without a mate, A bird of another feather.

“My friends,” said the Owl with a look most wise, “The Eagle is soaring too near the skies, In a way that is quite improper.”

Yet the world is praising her I'm told, And I think her actions have grown so bold That some of us ought to stay her.”

“I have heard it said,” quoth the Hawk with a sigh, “That young lambs died at the glance of her eye.”

And I wholly scorn and despise her, This, and more than told they say, And I think that the only proper way Is never to recognize her.”

“That she is quite covetous,” said Crow with a caw, “That she has no mind no moral law, She's a most unruly creature—”

“Some call her handsome—it's so absurd—” She hasn't a decent feature.”

Then the old marsh-owl went wopping about, Of the truth of each bird's story, And she said she was sure she hadn't a doubt—

“The truth of each bird's story, And she said she was sure she hadn't a doubt—”

“The truth of each bird's story, And she said she was sure she hadn't a doubt—”

Children's Column.

Norway, Me., July 26, '12.

Dear Children:—

Where are the letters from the children? We have not heard from many of you since you wrote your first letter, and wonder what you are doing.

Surely you can spend a little of your spare time and write us a letter or a story for the Children's Column. We have heard from a number of the children in this state and we would also like to hear from some from other states as well.

Write us a good long letter and tell us what you are doing, tell us about the picnic, the party, the boating, the swimming, the fishing, the farm, or anything that you are interested in, and some other boys and girls will be glad to read about it.

We are expecting a lot of letters from you now. You have probably got company and are having a fine time. Tell us about it.

Yours truly,

THE ADVERTISER.

How Rabbits Fight.

One day as I was quietly picking wild strawberries on a hill I heard a curious grunting down the side below me, then the quick thud! thud! of an angry rabbit.

Among the bushes I caught a glimpse of rabbit ears. A fight was on.

Crouching beside a bluish spot, which I knew to be a rabbit's nest, was a big yellow cat. He had discovered the young ones and was making mouths at the thought of how they would taste, when the mother's thump startled him. He squatted flat, with ears back, tail swelled and hair standing up along his back, as the rabbit leaped over him. It was a glimpse of Molly's ears as she made the jump that I had caught. It was the beginning of the bout—only a feint by the rabbit, just to try the mettle of her antagonist.

The cat could not stand this. Every particle of breath and fight was knocked out of him at about the third kick. The green light in his eyes was the light of error. He got quickly to a bush and ran away, else I believe that the old rabbit would have beaten him to death. [From Wild Life Near Home, by Ellen Milken.]

Bethel, July 15, 1912.

Dear Editor:—I will send you some verses about a little kitty.

Little Kitty.

“Once there was a little kitty
Who sat on the snow,
In the barn she used to frolic,
Long time ago.”

“In the barn a little mouse
Ran to and fro;
For she heard the kitty coming
Long time ago.”

“Two black eyes had little kitty,
Black as a crow,
And they spoiled the little mouse,
Long time ago.”

“Nine pearl teeth had little kitty,
All in a row,
And they bit the little mouse,
Long time ago.”

“When the teeth bit little mouse,
‘Little mouse cried, oh,
But she got away from kitty
Long time ago.”

The French View of Marriage.

In the August American Magazine, W. J. Locke, writing a story, makes one of his characters say:

“A Frenchman and an Englishman or an American view marriage from entirely different angles. The Anglo-Saxon of honest instincts, attracted toward a pretty girl, at once thinks of the possibilities of marriage; if he finds them infinitely remote, he never romances her. Love to her in the solitude of his walks abroad or of his sleepless nights, and in her presence is as dumb and dumb as a freshly book-ended trout.

The equally honest Gaul doesn't do anything of the kind. The attraction in itself is a stimulus to adventure. He makes love to her just because it is the nature of a lusty son of Adam to make love to a pretty daughter of Eve. He lives in the present. The past doesn't matter. He leaves it to chance. Love to a pretty woman is like a shower of rain to hyacinths. It passes, it goes. Another one comes. But the shower is necessary—ah! when will you comprehend?”

At the recently held meeting of the Republican candidates and committee of Oxford County at the Court House at South Paris, plans were made for the campaign. Those present included the members of the county committee, practically all of the candidates, Mr. Hastings of Bethel, member of the State committee, and Chas. H. Phillips and Hon. W. B. Skelton, the Republican candidate for Congress from the second district. Campaigns had been made of the different towns and the reports brought in indicated that Wm. T. Haines would carry the county by one of the old-time pluralities. The county, like other parts of the State, has had its legislative districts gerrymandered into sheepskins, which of course will make them more difficult to carry than they would have been otherwise, but that is the only thing that is causing the republicans of Oxford any anxiety.

Pisa's Leaning Tower.

Reports have been circulated for some time concerning the safety of the Leaning Tower of Pisa, and the Italian papers announce a similar state of things with the Garisenda of Bologna and the Ghirlandina of Florence. The former dates from 1119, and the latter from 1224 to 1319. The Tower of Pisa, which is about 177 feet in height, is 14 feet 6 inches beyond the perpendicular. It is accounted from the base, but diminishes halfway up an onward. The inclination is said to be greater today than it was in 1817. But there are other disquieting signs. Some of the stonework of the window is giving way, and the steps are said to be cracking. The soil upon which Pisa's Tower was raised, a Paris contemporary points out, is "permeable and friable," and subsoil is believed to be penetrating the masonry. Architects and other experts are now engaged in a close examination. They fear that below the foundations there are some considerable voids, and they are of opinion the inclination of the tower has increased since 1859. The commissioner appointed to deal with the matter concludes that there is no immediate danger, yet there must be no delay in remedial matters.

The Garisenda is about 161 feet in height, with an inclination of just 14 feet. The Ghirlandina is said to be the highest of the towers, being 331 feet. It is slightly inclined toward the Cathedral, which itself is in a feeble state.—London Globe.

Now for the Gloom Doll.

The gloom doll is the last word in freak novelties direct successors to the Teddy bear and the bilikiki and funnier by far than either.

The gloom doll belongs to the rag doll family, has flowing robes or a black suit, black, glazed pointed hat, and black whiskers. To look at the gloom doll is to laugh, for its face bears the funniest expression, a utter defecation imaginable, and therefore makes the doll a great comfort in the hot weather.

The gloom doll is a Paris novelty and is the hit of the season there. Fashionable French society women have cast aside their big dolls and other living pets for the new novelty and it is said that practically every woman of the upper classes in Paris has a gloom doll as her companion when she drives or walks abroad.

Scarcely a French child is seen without one. The grotesque figure is particularly well adapted for use as a mascot, too, and is finding immense favor with foreign motorists and aviators.

Sayings about Animals.

Strange Superstitions Which Have Been Handed Down Through the Ages.

There are many interesting superstitions connected with various animals. A few of them are given below.

When ants are unusually busy foul weather is at hand. Ants' eggs are an antidote for love.

The cub of a bear is licked into shape and life by its dam.

When a lever is hunted it bites off the part which the hunter seeks and then, standing upright shows the hunter that it is useless to continue the pursuit.

Bees swarm in a rotten tree a death in the family will occur within a twelve month. Bees will never thrive if you quarrel with them or about them.

Beetles are both deaf and blind.

When cats wash their ears more than usual, rain is at hand.

The sneezing of a cat indicates good luck to a bride. If a cat sneezes thrice a cold will run through the family. A cat has nine lives.

If a milkmaid neglects to wash her hands after milking, the cows will go dry.

Crickets bring good luck to a house. To kill crickets is unlucky. If crickets forsake a house a death in the family will soon follow.

Crocodiles weep over the prey which they devour.

If a crow datters about a window and caws it foretells a death.

The tenth egg is always the largest. Elephants have no knees.

If you count the number of fish you have caught you will catch no more that day.

To meet a frog is lucky, indicating that the person is about to receive money.

When frogs croak more than usual it is a sign of bad weather.

A guinea pig has no ears.

The black spots on each side of the haddock's gills is the impression of St. Peter's finger and thumb when he took the tribute money from the fishes' mouth.

If a dog bites you any evil consequence may be prevented by applying three hairs from the dog to the wound.

Hedgehogs foresee a coming storm.

If persons suffering from whooping cough asks advice from a man riding on a pinto, the pinto, the maldy will be cured by doing what the man tells him to do.

It is unlucky to kill a lady bug.

The lion will not injure a royal prince.

As a strict on digest iron.

When pigs carry straw in their mouths rain is at hand.

When hogs run grunting home, a storm is impending.

No person can die on a bed or a pillow containing pigeon's feathers.

Rats forsake a ship before a wreck or a house about to fall.

Ravens are birds of ill omen. Ravens call up rain. Ravens foster forsaken children.

There is a legend that the robin used to carry dew to the sinners perched in hell, and the scorching heat of the infernal regions turned its feathers red.

It is unlucky to kill a money spider. No spider will spin its web on an Irish oak.

Spiders have a natural antipathy for toads. Spiders only spin on dark days.

It is unlucky to kill a stork.

If a swallow builds on a house it brings good luck. When swallows fly high the weather will be fine.

No animal dies at the sea except at the ebbing of the tide.

The swan retires from observation when about to die and sings most melodiously.

Don't Grow Old.

Keep Your Hair Full of Life, Luster and Splendor.

Frank Kimball, proprietor of the Noyes Drug Store, sells PARISIAN SAGE the really good, hair grower, dandruff cure and hair beautifier.

Everyone who cares for youthful looks should use it.

What is believed to be a serious depredation upon the red oak trees by a small worm has been discovered. It was first suspected by noticing numbers of small twigs of the oak branches under the trees in the road. On examination it was seen that a minute worm had perforated the twig and eaten out the wood in a clear cut across the limb, causing it to break off and fall to the ground.

My grandfather, Benjamin Wright of Otisfield, was a man of ready wit and was also gifted with a genius for extemporaneous composition even in the way of verses. Writing a letter to his eldest daughter Betty who resided in a neighboring town he fell into rhyme at once:

I take my pen to write to you
To let you know how our folks do.
The weather it is very cold
And Sally, she is apt to soid,
And Polly got a sore toe,
And I can't make the fire go,
For want of some good hemlock bark,
And George can't get it in the dark,
For fear of that great old ram cat
That in our barn so lately sat,
And he did such sweet music make
It caused the sow and pigs to quake.

NORTHEAST LOVELL.

A Glorious Fourth.
On Thursday, July 4th, a party of 62 assembled at the home of George H. Eastman and there prepared to celebrate the day which has been their custom for the past six years.

Mr. Eastman's home is pleasantly located on Sabattus road and is an ideal spot for a day of recreation. His broad grounds and spacious lawn, shaded here and there by locust and maples, offers to a party of pleasure seekers a charming repose; and to that spot friends from Brighton and the nearby vicinity turned their thoughts and footsteps.

The table spread on the veranda and in the dining room and at 12.30 o'clock a chicken pie dinner was served to a company of picnickers, who did ample justice to the meal, not forgetting that a hearty laugh is an aid to digestion.

After the meal was over the men congregated on the lawn, and the ladies in the house, there to live over in memory the days of long ago and discuss the leading topics of the day.

Those present from a distance were: Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Hamilton and daughter of South Portland; Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Stanford and daughter of West Kennebunk and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eastman and son of Chicago, Ill.

Mr. Eastman is the late Philip Eastman and grandson of the late Job Eastman of Lovell. He has bought the old Eastman homestead and intends to make his summer residence here.

His wife, with their congenial manners, wife, with their congenial manners, soon came to be considered as old friends.

The sun had long since passed the zenith and was nearing the western horizon. One by one the guests took leave of their host, hostess and friends, and with best wishes to all returned to their several homes feeling that truly this had been a great day of thanksgiving.

As we gladly welcome the return of the Mayflower to the springtime, and cherish them deeply in our hearts, just so gladly do we welcome the return of this happy day of reunion, and will cherish it deeply in our hearts until we too are nearing the western horizon of life's little day.

A Guest.

Clifton Milliken has returned home. Dana McAllister and John Kendall called on Freeman Andrews' Sunday.

Orrington Rowland helped his uncle, Freeman Andrews, hay, Friday and Saturday.
